BJC ROUNDUP

JANUARY 19, 1960
BOISE, IDAHO

"IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK"

A combination of worried looks, stacks of texts, notebooks, sympathetic helpers and a feeling that time is swiftly passing, all add up to the coming of final exams. Worriers pictured above are Jack McElvay and Shirley West.

Down Television Science Lectures Now Have A Million In Audience

Amid rising criticism of mediocrity in television programming, an article in the January Reader's Digest reminds us that television at its best can rise above the mediocre and perform inspiring public service.

In the article, John Reddy reports that more than a million Americans drag themselves out of bed at daybreak each day to "attend" classes in physics and chemistry, via the National Broadcasting Company's nationally-televised "Continental Classroom" lectures.

The courses are now offered for classroom credit by 350 colleges. But students aren't limited to colleges. They range in age from eight to 80 and in occupation from high school teachers to a group of San Quentin prisoners.

"Continental Classroom" was launched by NBC in September, 1958, in response to President Eisenhower's appeal "for prompt action . . . to improve and expand the teaching of science." Cost of the program—more than a million dollars the first year—has been underwritten by 10 corporations, together with the Ford Foundation, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, and the American Chemical Society.

Chosen to teach the initial physics course in 1958 was Dr. Harvey White of the University of California. Six Nobel Prize winners also appeared, as guest lecturers. This year a chemistry course, taught by Dr. John F. Baxter of the University of Florida, is televised, as are re-runs of Dr. White's 119 lectures. Together the two men provide instruction that would otherwise require 1333

Diphtheria Shots Now Available At Health Center

Diphtheria immunization shots are urgently advised for members of the BJC student body and staff. Dr. Bruce Budge has announced.

Shots will be available every week-day morning between the hours of 8:30 and 12:00, and on Tuesday afternoons between 3:00 and 4:30.

There will be no charge for the immunization shots.

S.N.E.A. Holds Dance

The Student National Education Association held a Union Nite dance Saturday, January 16, in the Student Union ballroom.

Proceeds from this after-game dance will go to the S.N.E.A. scholarship fund.

Weekly Devotional

The weekly devotional of January 20, will be presented by Lambda Delta Sigma. Mr. Leon Hartshorne, director of the L.D.S. Institute, will be the guest speaker. Mr. C. Griffith Bratt will provide the organ music.

Scholarship Information

Information regarding the availability of student scholarships for colleges in almost every part of the country may be found in the BJC library. The librarian at the desk will direct any applicant to the materials.

Students Become Tense As Examinations Approach

The corridors and the Student Union have once again taken on a generally subdued air as the final exams approach. Students wear preoccupied, worried looks, as they head for the library and linger a while longer in the class rooms, wondering if their study material and the instructors' exam questions will be tuned to the same wave length. It happens at the end of every semester.

More students are studiously preparing themselves for final semester exams this year at BJC than ever before in BJC's history.

Although the over-all increase in BJC students does not represent the highest percentage rise in the college's history, it has exceeded the number anticipated by the administration and faculty.

As BJC's class rooms and laboratories began to fill at the beginning of this year, it became obvious immediately that there would be little or no spare room in the campus buildings.

President Chaffee said that it has been possible, so far, however, to offer classroom space to every applicant.

Variety Show Tryouts

Tryouts for the spring variety show sponsored by Delta Psi Omega will be held this Thursday and Friday, January 21 and 22, from 3:00 until 5:00 p.m. in the BJC auditorium.

"Any BJC student who can sing, dance, act, or play a musical instrument is invited and urged to try out," said Delta Psi representative Bob Flier.

"The show is tentatively scheduled for presentation in February, so we must begin work on it now," he said.

There is a possibility that the show will exchange with the Idaho State college variety show later this spring.

Student Loans

There are still funds available to qualified students under the National Defense Student Loan program, according to Vice President W. L. Gottenberg, who said such students are urged to come to his office to receive information on this program.

These funds are primarily used for students who have superior scholastic records, and intend to enter the teaching field, mathematics, foreign languages or engineering.

Application blanks can be obtained in room 121.

A student is never considered a failure until he fails in something he likes to do.

Debaters On TV

Debaters Glenn Miles, Diane Coy, Meredith Goody and Frank Hett will appear on "Periscope" on January 20, between the hours of 4:00 and 5:00 p.m. They will participate in a 20-minute panel discussion regarding academic grades and will also voice their opinion on exam cheating. Moderator for the program will be Nancy Clark.

The next debate tournament will be February 19 and 20, at the Idaho Speech conference at the University of Idaho. Eight or 10 BJC debaters are expected to participate.

Student Posters

All publicity posters from student organizations must be limited to size 14 by 22. This regulation applies to all campus buildings.

W. L. Gottenberg,
Vice President

CHEATING AT EXAMS...

The lead article in the January 9th issue of the Saturday Evening Post deals with the subject of college cheating at exams. Their evaluation of such underhanded methods of obtaining credits was like "Silent Cal" Coolidge's attitude toward sin in general: "They were against it. However, the Post approached the study in their customarily objective manner and were not content with saying that it was disgracefully rampant; they went down the line on exactly how it was done, creating the impressions that it was the common practice, rather than the exception among students. Mentioning a study at one eastern university, they said that "fraud was so extensive as to raise a doubt whether the institution's examinations and assigned original work had any validity at all."

Impelled by the respect we have for fellow students at BJC, we take objection to the general impression created by the Post's article.

From the serious student's point of view, cheating is morally and/or ethically wrong as well as contrary to logical reasoning. It is morally wrong for a student who regards cheating as an offense against the law of God; it is ethically wrong if it violates the rights of his fellow men by making an unjust claim upon academic credits. From a point of view of logical thinking, cheating is emotionally puerile, and a cheater is "kidding himself."

With reference to the college instructors, it would be naive to think that they were not aware of the possibility, at least, of cheating.

We feel that instructors are too dedicated to permit themselves to be misanthropes; yet, too experienced to be blithely optimistic about student honesty. Further, although we realize that it is an instructor's duty to apprehend a cheater, we do not believe that there is much joy in the detection. Aside from recording the mark on his record, the instructor who finds a cheater is forced to inflict a mark on the cheater's memory that will last through his entire life.

The final exams which start next week, will be not only a test of your competence and knowledge, but a test also of your moral integrity and your degree of maturity.

CAMPUS STYLES

By Sharon Paul

I've got a problem. Suppose I were to dig a hole in Boise straight through the earth. Breaking through the crust on the other side, I found I had come up in the middle of a lake and all the water rushed through. I was drowned.

My problem: "Where would the water go?"

First it would fall down the hole, until all of a sudden it wouldn't be going down any more; but going up. Since water never goes up (unless it is steam, I think), it would stay in the center (I think).

Now, if I kept pouring in water, would it push up and come out in Boise, or would some invisible force damn it up and would it come back out in the lake?

Anyway, I can't dig that kind of a hole because, if I dug down, pretty soon I'd be digging up; and I absolutely can't stand to dig up. I get dirt in my face.

Instead, I'll go down to Anderson's to see their beautiful bulky knit orlon sweaters by Bobbie Brooks. Try on a beautiful pair of red Scottish plaid Pendleton slacks. You'll feel as gay as a Scottish lassie. The skirt and slacks make the most slick winter outfit ever. Yours in quality at Anderson's.

The young son was chastized by his father for low grades on the report card. With an innocent air, the son replied, "A real problem, dad. Caused by heredity or environment?"

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Student of the Week

Because of her continued interest in campus affairs, sophomore Liane Martineau has been chosen by her fellow members of the Roundup staff as student of the week.

In addition to her position on the college paper, Liane is president of the Sigma Mu, the journalism club.

Liane's home is Montpelier, Idaho, where she attended school before entering BJC. She is majoring in journalism, and is assigned the "Campus Query" column on the paper.

Although Liane is still undecided what to do when she graduates from BJC this spring, she thinks she will try to continue her education at a four-year college or university.

ALUMNI NEWS

Bill Sunderland, IJC alumnus, who began a news reporting career in Boise and is now a United Press International correspondent in Rome, wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sunderland, about a recent dinner in the home of an Italian friend. He said he enjoyed the leisurely dining, which covered some three hours, but he admitted being disconcerted when the main course—roast turkey—was brought to the table.

"The turkey had been boned and in its deflated state looked a lot like a schmo. It tasted good, but give me the proud, tasty Idaho turkey anytime," he wrote.

TAU ALPHA PI

The Tau Alpha Pi announced after their recent meeting that they had arranged a taboggan-aid outing for members of the group on January 17.

It was agreed, also, at last week's meeting, to make a donation of six scholarships which will be available to students of the vocational education department. The scholarships are for $50 each.

Tau Alpha Pi jackets, as well as club pins, have been selected, it was announced.

He was chief of administration at BJC, worked as an agent of two insurance companies and Caldwell.

He sees 20 years of work regularly in remedial reading and psychology.

His hobbies are he rarely indulges in and politics with things and lighters. He has resided here in Boise five years.

The AQUA-TON INDOOR YEAR ROUND In Warm Water

Kenneth H. Hammond, W.A. Owner-Operator

FACULTY LOUNGE

Mr. J. Roy Schwartz, Mr. Dwight Dickey, and Mr. John Best discuss the problems of the day in the faculty lounge. There are a number of lounges for both the students and faculty in the Student Union building. There is also an upstairs ballroom for all formal functions of the school. The lounges, which are used daily for club meetings, are also used for relaxing, smoking, and coffee breaks.

BJC STUDENT UNION IS CENTER OF SCHOOL LIFE

The BJC Student Union is the center of the school social life. It is here that all students meet to eat, listen to music, talk, and (in very rare cases) study. It is one of the few places on campus where one can expect to see all of his friends during the day without making a date.

The prime objective of the SUB is to provide service to the students. No part of the Union operates for profit. It tries, however, to meet expenses.

In 10 years, it was reported, only one student has been excluded for misbehavior. Miss Hattie Gesner, director of the SUB, stated that there isn't one student in 100 who is not cooperative, and "students that they have been hardest on have become their best friends."

The biggest problem of the Union is that of keeping the students from playing cards between the 11:30-12:30 lunch rush, Miss Gesner said.

Employees of the union are: Mrs. Maude Alsager, Ethel Clevenger, Blanche Gentry, Mrs. Ray Henderlinder, Verna Hoyt, Helen Johnson, Evelyn McAnulty, Valet McFall, Blanche Myers, Lila Nash, Carry Parkinson, Eva Rash, Beth Spraker, and Bertha Watterhouse.

Many of these employees have had at some time, children who have gone to BJC.

BJC has had a Student Union building since the school year of 1940-1941. At that time the board of trustees recognized the students' social needs and decided that they needed a place where they could meet that was away from the classrooms.

ACTION WITH KNIFE AND FORK

POPULAR GATHERING PLACE

The Student Union was erected in 1941, and it met the needs at that time. But with the growth of the student body, the problem of providing a convenient gathering place again became acute. A second bond election was held in the spring of 1950, and as a result of it enough money was given to enlarge the Student Union to its present size. It is presently located between the dormitory halls and the music auditorium.

The dining room of the Student Union has rush hours from 11:00 to 1:30. During these few hours virtually everyone in the school meets for lunch, club meetings, or just to talk. Shown above are some of the students who daily crowd into the dining room. Often the cafeteria line extends to the sidewalk outside the SUB.

MUSIC WITH MEALS

Music, provided by the juke box, always accompanies meals at BJC. New records are added regularly, depending upon the current taste for tunes.

THE LUNCH BAR

Students are expected to choose wisely and well at the food bar which runs the length of the dining room. The employees who prepare the food are competent cooks, and all staff members of the SUB room. The employees who prepare the food are competent cooks. The food bar, above, has the most modern equipment and is capable of handling the daily noon-time rush of hungry students.

THE SUB BOOK STORE

The book store, located just off the dining room, has almost everything in the line of class-room equipment. Emily Tintinger and Bill Wakeland show Mrs. Esther Hart just which pen they would like. The book store is run by Emma Spangenberg, Hattie Gesner, Mildred Cecil, and Esther Hart.

BJC VS. MAGIC VALLEY

With a score of 74-42, the BJC team trounced the Panthers of Magic Valley for a second straight win last Saturday. BJC's next game is with Weber, last year's junior college champs.

More Men In Nursing Suggested As Answer To Critical Shortage

American hospitals face a critical shortage of trained nurses which has already forced many wards to close, it was reported this month in the Reader's Digest, which suggests encouraging more men to join the profession.

The article quotes a spokesman for the National League for Nursing's Committee on Careers: "The men who make good nurses are precisely the same kind who make good doctors, teachers, social workers and ministers. Nursing has nothing to do with gender."

Health experts indicate we'll need 700,000 registered nurses by 1970. Yet only 100,000 are being added each year to the current force of 400,000. Of these, just 225 a year are men.

Many of the 11,000 male RN's serve in military wards. Others fill jobs that range from toilet nurse to hospital director.

Income for male nurses is comparable to other registered professions, the article reports. A male RN can become a professor in a college school of nursing at a median salary of $7,100, a ranking nurse in a Veterans Hospital at $7,000 top, an instructor at $10,000 or more, a public health nurse or making up to $14,500, or with further training, a hospital director in the $15,000 bracket.

BJC is among the more than half of the nation's 114 nursing schools now welcoming male students. Other training programs enable students to specialize in nursing at a major college or university at minimum cost by working as a student nurse at a nearby hospital.

Small Town

"If the present population of the world could be represented by a thousand persons living in a single town, 60 persons would represent the population of the U.S.A. and 940 all the other nations. The 60 Americans would have the income of the entire town, the 940 persons would share the other half. Three hundred and three persons in the town would be white, 647 would be non-white. The 60 Americans would have an average life expectancy of 70 years, that of the 940 would be under 40 years. The average Christian American family would be spending $500 a year for military defense, and less than $150 a year to share with other residents the knowledge of why they are Christians." Henry Smith Leiper, in Social Action, March, 1959.

BJC Tilts MVCC

Boise Junior college's Braves captured their first two Inter-mountain Conference wins Friday and Saturday nights against Magic Valley Christian college in the Boise community, with perfect 8-0 and 7-0 victories.

Magic Valley was just no competition for BJC. The Braves' coach, Ed Hatfield, freely admitted during both games.

Friday, the entire Braves squad broke into the scoring end, connecting on 11 percent of their shots from the floor and 11 of 15 free throws.

The Panthers were able to connect on only 20 percent of their floor shots and made 11 of 22 penalty shots.

The second game was more of the same with the Braves easily outshooting the blackbirds.

Harry Summace was top Braves scorer for both nights with 16 and 14 points. Saturday night, Panther Jim Tidwell scored 18, and Glen Cleveland added nine for the Braves. Pat O'Connell hit 11 for BJC.

The next leg series is scheduled to be played at Magic Valley on Feb. 10, the BJC's defending champs. Weber college of Ogden has the first, Friday, and Saturday, BJC.

Coach Blankley Discusses Games

Boise Junior college coach George Blankley said the following comments on last week's two games were made after BJC lost the first, 80-64, and the second, 56-41.

Weber has a very fine club," he said, "and they just caught us cold. In the first game we only made 17% of our shots while they had a good 42% average."

"Weber will certainly be tough in the conference this year with three six-foot four starters. I rate them better than their team of last year who were winners of the NCAA championship tournament."

Second Semester Registration Set

Freshmen will register for second-semester classes at Boise Junior college on Feb. 4 and 5, Emma Gockley, acting registrar, reported Saturday. Registration for sophomores will be on Feb. 3.

Before registering, freshman students who have no previous college work will be required to report Feb. 3 to take entrance examinations. To receive a permit to register, students must complete an application form, a physical examination on a form provided by the college, submit three billfold size photographs, and a character reference form.

Second-semester classes will start on Feb. 8.

Senior Citizens Solve Problems

Senior citizens can solve many of their physical and mental problems with "old-fashioned" applied psychology, a Veterans Administration doctor believes.

"They try to do too much or too little," Dr. Charles Pearce says. "The trick is to have a realistic appraisal of your physical condition and plan your life accordingly."

Physicians can help reduce the frustrations of older persons by teaching them all they can comprehend about their illness or disability.

Girls Basketball Begins

Girls basketball will be held in the evenings next semester. All girls who are interested should contact the P.E. instructor, Miss Adams.
